To whom it may concern,

I am pleased to recommend Ignacio Balasch, who has been working under my management as a Business Intelligence intern at Amazon. In the short time he has been with us, Ignacio has demonstrated exceptional ownership, analytical ability, and maturity in handling technical challenges that are typically reserved for more experienced engineers.

Ignacio's primary project involves building an end-to-end data pipeline for critical KPI monitoring and alerting for operational excellence in Amazon Fulfillment. This is a critical initiative for our team and requires coordinating multiple data sources, designing scalable cloud components, and implementing structured logic to detect operational anomalies. Ignacio has handled this responsibility with professionalism and drive.

I am confident that Ignacio will thrive in a master's program focused on management, technology, and entrepreneurship. He has the mindset of a builder, the discipline of an engineer, and the curiosity of someone with long-term potential.
